Allegro, con spirito

rall.

Hear ye our greet-ings, oh sons of all na-tions!	List - en, ye men of the storm-driv-en sea!
Come ye in craft hav-ing wings of the ea-gle.	Come ye in ships of a far - fa-mous build.
Come as our guests, though your num - bers are le - gion,	Know ye our peo - ple as ye would be known.

Filled with the pride that has built our re - pub - lic,	Comes San Di - e - go's warm wel - come to thee.
Port of good cheer is our lov'd San Di - e - go,	Skirt - ed with val-leys our strong men have tilled.
Staunch are the men who have build - ed our cit - y,	Hearts full of love and re - spect for their own.

Welsh - man and High - land - er, Hin - du and Sax - on,
Sun - sets of gold paint our broad o - cean har - bor,
Out on the night will our search-lights be gleam - ing;

Feel ye the touch of our cheer - giv - ing hand?
First port of call from the far south - ern shore
Mil - lions shall watch for their far-sweep-ing girth.

Come to the land of the rose and poin - set - tia, Know ye the charms of our sun - gild - ed strand.
Come ye, be - hold in our World's Ex - po - si - tion Sights full of mar - vel and rich - est of lore.
This is the year of our world - wide o - va - tion— Come ye in wel - come, all na - tions of earth!

Chorus

Sons of the soil and ye sail - ors at sea! Might-y the theme of our wel - come shall be.

Bonds of sin - cer - i - ty, Wealth and pros-per - i - ty Kin - dle with glo - ry our greet - ings to thee!

*In "the land of the Rose and Poinsettia,"
Where all the year is June.*
